

We are having services at the church Sunday's @ 10 am
If you would prefer, we are still doing the online stream of the service @ 10 am and a Bible study @ 11am.
Our Wednesday service will start back August 19 @ 6:30 p.m.

Worshipping Together

Northside will meet at 10 am Sunday mornings. We will stream the service live on FB and Steve will do a Bible study afterward at 11 am. Wednesday's service will remain online.

"Due to the present health crisis. If you plan to attend, we ask you to read the Arkansas State Health Dept. guidelines at <https://www.healthy.arkansas.gov/programs-services/topics/covid-19-guidance-for-faith-based-organizations> and do your best to comply with these guidelines."

There will be only two doorways for entry and exit. These will be the main doorway facing Walnut Street and the breezeway door that accesses the lower parking lot. The doorway at the front of the auditorium will be for emergency exiting only. No childcare will be provided at this time and we ask that you do not enter the educational wing of the building. Please strive to maintain 6 feet distancing between family groups as you enter and exit the building. Due to the physical distancing guidelines, you may be asked to sit away from your usual area of the auditorium so that there is room for everyone. If there is a need for overflow seating, this will be provided in the fellowship building with a livestream of our worship there. There will be elders and deacons to assist you with entry, seating and exiting worship.

Individual communion packets can be picked up in the foyer as you enter the building. Offering plates will be available for giving in the foyer as you exit.

If you have existing health problems or are over 65 years of age, then group worship may put your health at risk. If you have questions about this, please consult with your healthcare provider to see if attendance is safe for you at this time. We will continue to live stream our worship service for those who need to remain at home for now.

Palm Trees In Scotland

Palm trees in northern Scotland? Doubtful, but true. But how? In a covered biosphere? No. These trees grow and thrive out of doors. But how? The answer is the Gulf Stream.

In a similar latitude as Alaska, Ullapool, Scotland has a climate more like that of the southern United States. Just casually looking at the map, the reader might expect to see heather-clad mountains, and tundra-like low vegetation. But at Inverewe, latitude 58°N, there is the world-famous tropical garden. This garden is made possible by the Caribbean warmth of the Gulf Stream.

The Gulf Stream gets its name from the Gulf of Mexico where this north-east flowing current originates. The water temperature at the origin is 80°F year-round. As the current moves away towards Europe, it influences the Bahamas (which consequently has tropical vegetation, as if the islands were in the South Pacific). It also more generally influences the climate of the east coast of the United States, as far up as Newfoundland in Canada. The Gulf Stream is a powerful river within the ocean: it is a clear blue, when seen from space, and dwarfs in water volume all rivers which empty into the same ocean. It is typically 62 miles wide and from 2600 ft to 3900 ft deep. At the surface it flows at about 6 mph.

The Gulf Stream's closeness to Nantucket, Massachusetts, adds to its biodiversity, because it is the northern limit for southern varieties of plant life, and the southern limit for northern plant species.

The Gulf Stream helps keep Ireland and the western coast of Great Britain a couple of degrees warmer than the east. However, the difference is most dramatic in the western coastal islands of Scotland, where Inverewe Gardens are located. The warming effects continue all up Norway's western coast, keeping the famous fjords largely ice-free.

The powerful and unexpected influence of the Gulf Stream upon Scotland reminds me of the powerful and unexpected influence of worldliness upon us. Currents have a way of carrying things to places they didn't intend to go: true in oceans, true for people. Awareness is key.

The Ephesian letter teaches the importance of recognizing error-laden currents that lead Christians astray. These currents are fought off by connectedness to the body of Christ, engaging in works of service, striving towards spiritual maturity and abiding in Christ. When we make this effort: “. . .we will no longer be infants, tossed back and forth by the waves, and blown here and there by every wind of teaching and by the cunning and craftiness of men in their deceitful scheming” (Ephesians 4:14). May we always have our eyes open to the currents that affect us. Awareness is key.
