Prayer Warrior

Those who remember Daniel and the Lions' Den are familiar with the reason Daniel was cast there: he prayed to God when he was forbidden to. By any estimation, Daniel was a praying man. In our modern times we might even call him a prayer warrior. Throughout Daniel's book, we find insights into his prayer life that deepen our appreciation of why his prayer life was so unusually comprehensive and powerful. We know that Daniel prayed three times a day, every day. We know that he prayed regardless of the political winds. Daniel 9 gives us more:

Prayer and Petition

"So I turned to the Lord God and pleaded with him in prayer and petition, in fasting, and in sackcloth and ashes." (Daniel 9:3).

As far as prayer is concerned, we may say that Daniel here pulled out all the stops. If prayer is general communication with God (worship, thanksgiving, confession and supplication in a general sense), then petition is intensified and specifically focused prayer (asking God for guidance, healing, intervention for one situation, etc.) Fasting in Daniel's case is more than not eating: it is spiritual discipline that allows Daniel to focus intensely on things unconnected with the body, and really listen to God. Sackcloth represents Daniel's willingness to subjugate himself to God in complete humility; while ashes (a symbol of purification and cleansing) demonstrate Daniel's desire to be restored to a right relationship with God.

Prayed and Confessed

"I prayed to the Lord my God and confessed . . ." (Daniel 9:4). Nearly all of Daniel 9's prayer is confession: confession of the sins of the people, confession of the goodness of God, confession of God's faithfulness. Requests and pleas play smaller roles: "O Lord, listen! O Lord, forgive" (Daniel 9:19). Thinking about Daniel's prayer nudges me to pray more like him: confessing more, requesting less. If we are honest with ourselves, we will likely see trends skewed towards asking and requesting.

Daniel's prayers teach us a lot about a healthy prayer life. May we find greater ways to pray, petition, subjugate, fast, and confess so that we may also pray in healthy and powerful ways.
