Paul's Doxology

Romans 11:33-36

Scattered throughout scripture, especially at the end of a teaching section, the Bible reader occasionally finds a Doxology: a step-aside moment of praise or concluding blessing. These meaningful words draw the reader into the presence of God as if laying the lesson being taught at the feet of the Lord. The word "doxology" comes from the Greek doxa (glory) and logos (word), meaning "a word of glory" or "glory saying." These beautiful and meaningful doxologies are generally 1) directed to God, 2) brief and praise-filled, 3) liturgical in that they are often used in worship, prayers and benedictions, and 4) composed of scriptures and/or Biblical themes.

The Romans 11 doxology is unique in that Paul blends elements of OT scripture with his own praise of God to make a magnificent whole. It is well documented how poetic language, just like inspiring music, can lift the soul heavenwards, even bringing susceptible readers and worshippers to tears. Here the 'depth of the riches of God's wisdom' is reminiscent of Psalm 139 (If I go up to the heavens, you are there; if I make my bed in the depths, you are there.) God is everywhere, and his loving wisdom reaches us in all places. 'Who has known the mind of the LORD?' brings us directly back to Isaiah 40 (Who has understood the mind of the LORD, or instructed him as his counselor?); and 'Who has ever given to God, that God should repay him?' transports us back to God's second speech to Job, reminding us that no one can give to God or advise Him because everything finds its source, its reason and its justification in the Sovereign Lord. Finally, the last two lines remind us of the comfort and strength of other doxologies, such as at the end of the Lord's Prayer, recalling that all power and glory is God's for ever and ever. Amen.

Keep your eyes open for Biblical doxologies. They are truly a blessing and have a way of letting us momentarily rest in the presence of God.

Family News

We are so thankful for our family in Christ. Losing my dad has made us all say over & over, "I don't know how people go through loss without Jesus."

Thank you for the food, texts, calls & cards, but most of all for the prayers for my dad. We are sad but rejoicing his strong, fully healed new body.

*Love,
Travis & Staci Prewitt and The Dan Ohler Family*

Prayer Requests

CURRENT

Butch Alumbaugh, Bettye Honey's brother, has been moved to White County Hospital in Searcy with pneumonia, cancer and he is not eating. He may be put in hospice care.

Sherria Honey Burk, Jerry & Bettye Honey's daughter, is undergoing chemotherapy for cancer and seems to be doing well.

Susan Garland's cousin, Cheryl Gaskill Matthews, passed away Sunday. Please keep the family in your prayers.

Denton Kernodle, David's brother, had a biking accident on Wednesday morning when he was struck by a truck. He is doing better, but he will undergo additional testing.

Christy Lair requests prayers for the chemotherapy to be effective.

Rusty McMillan - Please keep Rusty & Alicia in your prayers.

Tony Moats, Angie Thomas' brother, passed away Tuesday morning. Please keep Angie and her family in your prayers. Funeral services will be Thursday morning at 10:00 in Danville.

Carol Murphy is still in Mt. Vista and needs prayers.

Josh Wilson's father, Stephen Wilson, is not doing well. He is at the University of Kansas Medical Center with end stage liver cancer.

John Wray has an appointment with a cardiologist and will have a heart cath on Friday, August 8th.

Bygone Days

"The picture is of a grain silo at my great-grandparents' dairy farm. In Luke 12:16-21, Jesus tells a parable about a man who built large barns to store grain. The silo in the photo served this exact purpose. After this, Jesus says to not value physical treasures but spiritual ones. He says this in Matthew as well. The dairy farm has been shut down for decades and is rotting away with no people willing to repair it. The silo represents the barns in the parable. But everything poured into the infrastructure for the farm is now gone. All earthly treasures will suffer the same fate."
