Goody Two Shoes

The label “goody two shoes” has been used countless times by children throughout the centuries to pressure obedient children into following the wiles of the up-to-no-good crowd. We need to look no further than our own lives to find examples of where we have made bad choices all for the sake of avoiding the sing-song label of “goody two shoes”. Where did this label come from?

Not many people nowadays know that ‘Goody’ was originally just another way to say “Mrs.”. Let me explain. In the same way that in the 5 centuries since the time of Shakespeare, ‘Mistress Smith’ has transformed into our modern ‘Mrs. Smith’ (giving birth, as changing times demanded, to ‘Miss Smith’ and ‘Ms. Smith along the way - all descended from the original “Mistress”) , so Goody Smith originated in the 16th Century ‘Goodwife Smith’. This was then, as now, rather a mouthful to say, and changed in common speech to ‘Goody Smith’.

You may be familiar with playwright Arthur Miller’s The Crucible - a story about the witch trials in Salem, Massachusetts, in 1692-93 - but which really was about McCarthyism in 1950 America. That gripping story of witchcraft, and supernatural events, is peopled with Goody Putnam, Goody Parris, Goody Nurse, Goody Proctor and others, all of whom were simply married women, and would today have been Mrs. Putnam etc.

The only thing is that Goody Smith existed alongside Mistress Smith. [If you have read to here, please send me a text message! I am hoping to find out if these articles are in fact read!! 870-577-4388] The difference was that the women referred to as Goody were normally of modest background; whereas the Mistresses of this world were just that -better off, even if not wealthy, and probably ran a household including servants, cooks and other staff.

Goody Two-Shoes started off life then as a story of a woman, Mrs. Two-Shoes in modern-day language. She did not have much money, but what she did have was two serviceable shoes (as opposed to either no shoes at all, or only one shoe, the other being worn-out and not really fit for use). The story known as Goody Two-Shoes written by an unknown author but published in 1765 in London, is the history of a little orphan girl, Marjorie Meanwell, who went through life with only one shoe. One day a rich gentleman gave her a pair of new shoes and Marjorie was so happy she told everyone she had two shoes. . Later her gentle nature and natural goodness were rewarded by her marrying a rich widower and becoming a schoolteacher - her virtue was rewarded by riches and better

A MESSAGE FROM OUR ELDERS

The elders want the Northside family to know that we are actively considering how and when we can worship together again as a group. This decision process will need to be made in consideration of scripture's direction about worship, your safety, and local, state, and national guidelines. We have been and will be monitoring the current situation and will be communicating with you as future plans come together. We desire and encourage all of you to continue regularly and daily in your study of scripture. Please know that if you are in need of anything the elders and ministers are still available at any time.

Goody Two Shoes

....Continured from front
standing in life - but her humble origins are recorded in her name "Goodwife" Two-Shoes: Goody Two-Shoes was born.
As time went by, the complete story was forgotten. The only part that stuck in people's minds was the fact that Goody Two-Shoes was virtuous, unnaturally virtuous, even too virtuous.

And now, when kids say it, they mean a do-gooder, someone who is excessively nice, lacking backbone and resolve. Although the "goody two shoes" label is cast on others in order to shame them, the truth is being called "good" is no shame at all. To the contrary, it is an honor to be called "good". God is good. God calls his people to be good. God wants his children to be good in character and good in their dealings with others. "So then, while we have opportunity, let us do good to all people" (Galatians 6:10).
So, the next time that someone calls you "goody two shoes", don't be embarrassed. Rather, thank them.

Steve Powers
