A Gentle Answer
A gentle answer turns away wrath, but a harsh word stirs up anger. PROVERBS 15:1

Human Nature
We probably all instinctively think we know what is meant by the word 'nature'. All animals have a certain instinctive nature. For example, retrievers are a breed of dog that are instinctively fun-loving, gentle, family-oriented animals with a strong bond to their master. We humans have instinctual sides to ourselves: some good, some bad. When we simply react according to our nature, it may not lead to the righteousness that God desires for his people. Human nature is conditioned by so many factors : we inherit certain traits through genes from our parents, and others from the way we have been brought up - in our case from an early age as Christians, taught to respect others, be kind and loving to all. We often use the shorthand 'second nature' for these attributes : but sometimes, deep down, especially when threatened or frightened, we act instinctively to protect ourselves. When in this mode, we may forget our better natures and act selfishly and egoistically, such that later, we may be ashamed of ourselves.

Gentle
Solomon chooses the word gentle (Heb.RAK = tender, delicate, soft) to describe the wise response to personal confrontation. Gentleness (as American English speakers have come to understand it) is a quality most often associated with spinelessness. Nothing could be further from the truth. Truth is, it takes much more personal self-control and wisdom to respond to an accusation with gentleness than with defensiveness and revenge. Gentleness is a word used to describe Jesus (Matthew 11:29). Gentleness is a fruit of God's Holy Spirit that we Christians are to produce (Galatians 5:23). Paul urges Christians to "clothe" themselves with gentleness (Colossians 3:12). Paul instructs young Timothy to pursue gentleness (1 Timothy 6:11). The quality of gentleness is a virtue: a quality of Jesus. A gentle answer turns away wrath.

The Tongue
We are accountable for our words, the words that come from our mouths and reveal who we are in our inner selves. We can train ourselves never to say bad things, use swear words, take the name of God in vain. We can keep a tight rein on our daily language, despite the terrible examples we may be exposed to in movies and on social media...such that at the final analysis such thoughts are not expressed, ever, by our tongues. May our hearts be as pure as possible, modelled on the love of Jesus and his compassion for His fellow man. A gentle answer turns away wrath.
